

Learn together, learn practically, learn locally

Equipping God's people for whole-life discipleship is both exciting and essential. Learning Hubs give you the vision, motivation, and tools*:

A wealth of experience

Our facilitators are all experienced church leaders presenting ideas and methods developed through work with hundreds of churches.

Interactive, hands-on learning

There is plenty of time to try ideas with your congregation and reflect on their success (or failure!) in the next group session.

Practical actions to try right away

We share simple steps that can create a ripple effect, showing rather than telling, and helping develop lasting culture change.

Community support

By learning together with your team and other local churches, you can learn from and support each other during and long after the hub.

God at work

Discover new ways to see God's work in and through your congregation every day, and have the joy of seeing God do more in more places.

Resources at your fingertips

LICC produces small group materials, preaching packs, service plans, and theological articles to help leaders apply hub learning.

Fun

Is it ok if it's fun? We hope so. Past participants tell us it's a memorable, community-building, and enjoyable learning experience.

*This and the above benefits are based on follow-up research with participants.

'Our Learning Hub has helped me keep the most important things as the most important things. It combines great theology with practical applications.'

Church Learning Hubs

Church beyond the building

Jesus calls us to make disciples who live their whole lives for the glory of God.

The way we nurture people as their church leaders – whether through services, small groups, or personally – deeply affects the kind of people they are out in the world. Christian community strengthens each believer with renewed boldness, joy, and insight to live for Jesus on their individual frontlines. This conviction has led LICC to listen to and work with hundreds of churches over 15 years as they equip their congregations for whole-life discipleship. We've led Learning Hubs everywhere from London to the Lake District, for everyone from Elim to Church of England.

Learning Hubs

A Learning Hub is a series of eight guided workshops for a cohort of local churches. They help leadership teams and entire churches explore how they can develop a lasting culture as whole-life discipling communities.

The 2.5-hour workshops are usually held once a month, with key leaders attending every session and ministry teams attending sessions relevant to them.

Course content

The eight sessions are:

- 1 An Introduction to Whole-life Discipleship and Church
- 2 Culture-change for a Frontline Focus
- 3 Preaching with a Frontline Focus
- 4 Praying for the Frontline
- 5 Worship leading with a Frontline Focus
- 6 Small Groups with a Frontline Focus
- 7 The Workplace as your Frontline
- 8 Sharing Faith on the Frontline

Host a Hub

We'll provide the teaching and facilitation, and you can gather a few churches in your area or network to meet up and learn together. To think through organising a Hub, we'll connect you to one of our LICC Church Consultants.

Join a Hub

A Learning Hub may well be about to start near you – and maybe you've already been invited. Feel free to ask us questions directly or try a workshop first (see both below). To find out if there is a Hub you can join in your area, contact us and ask – if there is we'll connect you with the host church.

Try it on for size

We know a nearly year-long process is a big commitment. So before joining a Hub, perhaps you'd like to attend a one-off workshop? Visit licc.org.uk/church or contact us to find out what we offer.
